ing Grand Army Encampment. Etc., Etc. By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—[By the Associated Press.] The Examiner's Washington special says: It is rumored here tonight that the resignation of Secretary Blaine is now in the hands of President Harrison, and that it will be accepted, to take effect September 1st.

The reason given is the continued illheaith of Mr. Blaine, who, by advice of his physicians, has decided to take a much-needed rest.

GHASTLY TRAGEDY.

A Woman and Her Son Killed—Death of the Murderer.
Boston, July 18.—[By the Associated Press.] A horrible tragedy was enacted in Somerville early this morning. The victims are Mrs. Catherine Smith, aged 45, and her son Thomas, aged 14, and the perpetrator of the deed was Augustus Rosenberg. Two younger children of Mrs. Smith were also injured, one of whom will die. The murderer had been living with Mrs. Smith about a year as her husband, but the general belief was they were not married. It Woman and Her Son Killederal belief was they were not married. It is supposed a quarrel over financial affairs was the chief cause of the tragedy. They lived upstairs over a grocery store, which Mrs. Smith conducted.

lived upstairs over a grocery store, which Mrs. Smith conducted.

The neighbors were aroused at 1 o'clock by a number of pistol shots. The police entered the front door and encountered the dead body of Thomas Smith, who received his wound probably upstairs and succeeded in reaching the lower landing before failing. He was the eldest of the children, of which there were five. Mrs. Smith was found in bed. The indications were that she was shot while asleep. All the children sleps in the attic. Willie, aged 13, and Augustus, aged 7, slept together. The former was shot through the body, and the wound is probably fatal. Augustus was shot in the mouth; he will probably recover. Charles, aged 5, was slightly wounded. He was in bed, with Mabal, a year younger.

on Grand Army Men Will Attend in Great Numbers.
Chicago, July 13.—[By the Associated Press.] E. B. McEliero of Salem, Or., Commander of the Oregon department of the G. A. B., who is in the city, regrets much the trouble in the East over the railroad rates, which seems likely to break up the National Encampment. He says so far as the Department of Oregon is concerned, it cannot observe any order relative to non-attendance unless issued directly by the Commande-in-Chief. If the Wisconsin G.A. R. men have the courage to proceed, McElroy mande-in-Chief. If the Wisconsin G.A.R. men have the courage to proceed, McElroy said, then if need be the Oregon department will come on single-handed and alone to meet with their comrades in Milwaukee. Oregon will bring from four to six carloads of wines, with still other products, for free distribution, and all posts have a free, full and standing invitation to participate and libate at the Oregon headquarters.

GEN. WARNER'S CHEGULAR

GEN, WARNER'S CIRCULAR.

KANSAS CITY, July 13.—Commander-inChief Warner has issued a general circular to allow G.A.R. posts urging members to attend the National Encampment at Milwankee, despite the refusal of the railroads to all the 1-cent-a-mile rate. It is generally believed at Gen. Warner's headquarters here that the attendance will be quite as large as if the dispute with the roads had never occurred.

THE CRONIN MYSTERY.

The San Francisco Suspect Probably Not the Right Man.
CHICAGO, July 13.—[By the Associated Press.] A reporter saw Chief of Police Hubbard today in regard to Maurice Welch, now in San Francisco, and suspected of being a man wanted for complicity in the Cronin case, under the name of J. B. Simonds. He is believed to be the original of the picture shown Hatfield and Throckmorton by Luke Dillon and identified by them as Simonds. The San Francisco Suspect Prol so Simonds.

"Do you not believe so?" the reporter saked. Chief Hubbard remained silent moment and replied: "I don't know that welch is the original of that picture."

"But don't you believe so?"
Another short period of silent meditation and then in a tone of regret: "I do not."

"Who?"

nd then in a tone of regret: "I do not.
"Why?"
"It would be too bix a piece of luck."
"Then he may be?"
"Yes."
"Has be been arrested?"
"Mo."
"Will he be?"
"That's another question."
"Will you answer it?"
"No."

Latest Phase of the Great Defalcation at Buffalo.

BUFFALO (N.Y.), July 13.— |By the Associated Press.] Intense excitement was caused today by the announcement that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of W. H. Sherman, head of the firm of Sherman Bros. & Co., limited, who is alleged to have sold certificates for a large amount of grain in the International and Lake Shore Elevators, the grain having been previously grain in the International and Lake Shore Elevators, the grain having been previously withdrawn by him and marketed. The warrant charges Sherman with grand larceny. He is missing, and is supposed to have gone to Canada. E. C. Hawkes, one of the owners of the International Elevator, says the matter is being investigated; that, it involves missing wheat also, and that the shortage may amount to $200,000.

Cheap Telegraph Rates Desired by the Government.

the Government.

WARMINGTOM, July 12.—[By the Associated Press.] Concerning the report that he had made an order reducing the rate on Government telegraphic messages from 1 cent to 1 mill per word, the Postmaster-General says that he had suggested this For Additional Classified Advertise-rate and that some of the companies objected. To them he had written a letter which stated among other things:

"I desire to say that the rate proposed was fixed upon information furnished to this department that your company has been making rates to various large corporations that are, in some instances, as low as the figures now proposed for the Government service. With notice of this fact I would not be justified in making for the Government a new contract at higher rates than were charged other patrons, especially so in view of the privileges and benefits extended to your company by acts of Congress. I submit to your own sense of right that the Government is entitled to minimum rates."

THE CARNEGIE STRIKE.

It Is Believed to Be Practically Ended.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The great strike at the Homestead steel works of Carnegie, Phipps & Co., is practically over. A conference between the amalgamated officials and the firm was arranged by the Sherlif today. It aggreed may be a number of execution points.

agreed upon a number of essential points, and further discussion will be held on Monday. This is regarded as a virtual settlement of the trouble, and it is expected that the immense plant will soon be again in full operation.

A Trust Going to Pieces.

New York, July 13.—It is reported among the paper-box manufacturers that "the straw board trust" has given up the fight, and that it is only a question of a few days when the pool will be broken. The rumors are partly confirmed by a decline in the past week of $12 to $15 per ton in the price of straw boards.

A Jealous Doctor's Crime.

Boston, July 13.—This atternoon Dr.
William White, aged 76, shot and seriously.
wounded his wife, Bilen, aged 25, and then suicided. She was his second wife. They had been married about two years, and of late lived unhappily, White being very jealous of his wife. His jealousy finally terminated in today's tragedy.

Murderer Hanged. MEMPHIS, July 13.—Thomas Jefferson, colored, was hanged this afternoon. His neck was not broken, and he strangled to death in eighteen minutes. His crime was the murder of William Ragland, colored, October 29, 1888. Jealousy was the cause.

Made Insane by Heat.

New York, July 18.—Capt. Gordon Winslow, 51 years old, a retired army officer, was found acting queerly on Sixth avenue today. The heat has unbalanced his mind, and he was sent to the hospital for treatment. His home is in Nebraska.

A Public Execution.

MEMPHIS (Tenn.), July 13.—Charles
Wirt (colored) was hanged today at Somerville, Fayette county, Tenn., for the murder of Eveline Hester on the 24th of December last. The scaffold was erected in the creek bottom near the town, which owing to heavy rains was nearly a foot deep in water. Yet the crowd stood in the water for hours and pressed so close that the military company with fixed boyonets was employed to keep them back.

Fatal Railway Collision.
OIL CITY (Pa.), July 13.—A collision occurred this afternoon on the Western New York and Philadelphia road on a curve near Petroleum Center, about seven miles from this city, between a freight train and a new engine, which was being tried. Brakeman Tamiln was instantly killed and four others were painfully but not seriously injured. Both engines and several cars were completely demolished.

German Court Circles Excited Over an Imperial Convert to the Church of Rome—Berlin

By Telegraph to The Times.

BERLIN, July 18.—[Copyright, 1888, by the New York Associated Press.] The reply of the Swiss Bundesrath was received at the Foreign Office yesterday. Though civil in tone, it is none the less defiant. It does not recede a step from the position previously taken by Switzerland, and is throughout a vindication of the rights of refugees and of the Swiss toward German police agents. The tenor of the reply was communicated to the German Minister at Berne early is week. The communication was a signal for the adoption of stringent measures for the scrutiny of travelers crossing the Swiss frontier, baggage being merollessly overhauled and goods wantonly searched and delayed.

Today's National Zetimo denies that these regulations are reprisals, and declares they are due to directions from the imperial customs officials, uninfluenced by the Government.

The Swiss Canton authorities, believing they are due to directions from the imperial customs officials, uninfitneed by the Got-ernment.

The Swiss Cantom authorities, believing otherwise, direct travelers to proceed through Austrian territory. The attitude of the Swiss Government is probably strengthened by the knowledge that Hismarck's menaces to Swiss neutrality occasion dissatisfaction. The Emperor has advised Bismarck to modity his tone and thus avoid aggravating the difficulties.

The North German Gazette tonight, commenting on the situation, explains that the dispatch of June 5th was the outcome of an understanding with Russia, and proceeds to show that its object was by giving it the tone and tenor of the identical note presented at the same time, to accentrate the impression it was intended to produce. Its purpose so far has been attained, the Swiss authorities giving due consideration to Russian representations, and it is expected that they will ultimately recognize the German claims, though in a less friendly and less expeditious manner. The diplomatic action of Germany is aimed at social Democracy in Switzerland. Against Switzerland itself this policy is directed only in sofar as elements hostile to the German empire are protected and promoted there. To combat these elements is a task of imperial policy, and the fight will not be abandoned until the task is fulfilled.

An imperial Convert to the contract of the contraction is a task of imperial policy can be abandoned until the task is fulfilled.

COUNTY LICENSES.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MAKE A NEW DEPARTURE.

Order Submitted Establishing Licenses to Be Collected from People in Nearly Every Branch of Business and Creating a New

The Board of Supervisors has begun to wrestle with a county license ordilong ordinance was filed, which will raise quite a breeze throughout the county. There is no county license at present. In June, 1883, the Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance, and it remained in force until September, 1883, when it was repealed.

The ordinance introduced yesterday, and which is to be discussed hereafter by the board, provides for a large number of licenses, and an occupation tax. It creates the office of County License Tax Collector, who is to receive 10 per cent. of all licenses collected. It provides the mediting for the collection s Reviewed and Deplored Outside Help Declined. Mayor Hazard yesterday received the following copy of resolutions adopted at a mass-meeting of the citizens of Bakersfield, July 8th, just after the great fire which almost totally destroyed that town:

The procession of calamities now our continent with fire and flood has at last fallen upon our own hopeful town and overwhelmed it with

The entire business portion of our rising city, comprising every store and other place of business or entertainother place of business or entertainment, the elegant Southern Hotel—but yesterday the pride of our people and the admiration of all beholders—as well as other elegant and costly structures in course of erection, is to-day a sickening ruin, while not a few of our people are turned homeless and destitute into the shelterless

Space.

Such a visitation at any time is one to appall the stoutest heart, and falling upon us at the opening of a most promising career, we bow beneath the rod. Yet, while bent, we are not broken; nor has the courage and hopeniuness of our people for a moment for-

rod. Yet, while bent, we are not broken; nor has the courage and hopefulness of our people for a moment forsaken us; therefore, we, the business men of Bakersfield, taking counsel together, hereby earnestly Resolve, that from the ashes of our present affliction shall arise our future crown of glory; that, with the vast resources of a country of marvelous productive capacity to support our city, we can see no reason for despondency, but, on the contrary, every locentive to a redoubled effort to rebuild it in the most substantial and progressive form; and to this end we pledge our efforts with determination unswerving. Resolved, that to our farmers and "Good Samaritans" generally, who generously opened their stores of provisions to the needy in our midst, our heart-felt thanks are due, and that to the kindly people of our sister city of Los Angeles, who, through their Mayor, have tendered assistance, while declining such aid as unnecessary, we say, God bless you. May your beautiful city never be overtaken by such a calamity. C. Brower, L. M. Dinkenspiel, H. A. Jastro, T. E. Harding, O. O. Mattson, W. E. Houghton, H. A. Blodgett, H. Hirschfield, Committee.

THE NEW HOSPITAL.

Partial List of Trustees Selected-

A Meeting.
The committee appointed to formuorganization of a general hospital in this city has met with very gratifying success in enlisting the interest of rep resentative men of the various churches and benevolent associations in the enterprise. Among others, the following persons have agreed to act as trustees: Mrs. Ducommon of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, Mrs I. N. Ladies' Benevolent Society, Mrs I. N. Van Nuys of the Baptist Church, Mrs. G. C. Knox of the Masonic Order, Mrs. J. S. Slauson of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Herman Hellman of the Hebrew Benevolent Society, Mrs. H. W. Mills of the Congregational Church, Mrs. J. M. Guinn of the A.O.U.W., Mrs. R. M. Widney of the Methodist Church, Maj. L. S. Butler of the Grand Army, Lester Osborne, representing several societies.

The list is not yet full, but the character of those who have consented to serve argues well for the success of the enterprise. A general meeting of

FRANK TOAL.

HIS DEEP AND ABIDING AF-FECTION FOR HIS WIFE.

The Bloody-minded Wretch Tries to Save Himself by Accusing His Wife - When He Cut Her She Held the Knife in Her Own

The trial of Frank Toal for cutting his wife was resumed yesterday morning before Judge McKinley, and the testimony was all in by the time court adjourned in the afternoon. The brutality of the crime was made more patent by the witnesses, and the defense was a remarkable one. The attendance of spectators was larger than on the day before. Mrs. Toal again wore a veil over her disfigured face.

Mrs. A. M. Vores, a neighbor of the Toals, testified that she did not see the bloody assault, but afterward saw Mrs. Toal lying on some hay in Saxe's barn. She presented a frightful appearance. Her face and breast were covered with blood, and her gaping wounds bore witness to the fearful experience through which she passed.

Master Vores, a boy 7 years old, son of Mrs. Vores, saw the cutting, but was not permitted to testify on account of his age. J. W. Sykes, Officer J. F. Maguire J. W. Sykes, Officer J. F. Maguire and Officer J. E. Wheaton testified to the condition of Mrs. Toal after the cutting, and described her appearance. F. H. Steele, a police officer, stated that he was not at the Toal place April 20th, but about 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon he was coming up Requena street and went into Tom Merchant's saloon. "I was there a few minutes," he said, "when Frank came in Lynkled appropriate the said of the sai when Frank came in. I walked up to him and arrested him, and he asked me not to take him for a few minutes, as he had some business with Mer-chant. Pretty soon other officers came

"If you made that statement, it was not true?"

No, sir; if I said that it was true."
Dr. N. H. Morrison: On April 25th I was living in this city, and was police surgeon. I saw the case the following morning after the cutting. I made an examination and dressed Mrs. Toal's wounds. She had several cuts in the face, one on the right breast that struck the clavicle, quite a deep gash. There was a slight gash in the left breast. "If the knife had been stuck in her ear," said Mr. Williams, facetiously, "and twisted around, and she had been cut in the neck with it, and stabbed, probably death would have occurred, Doctor!"

"It might, and it might not," dryly responded the witness.

Mrs. Toal, on re-cross-examination, said that she had told Andy Toal's with the there are the property in the face, be and the wint of the property. Two or three weeks previous I remember Mr. Bell coming to the office with Frank Toal. He had copies of documents notifying people to cease selling ilquor to Mrs. Toal. One of them was served.

Frank Toal, the defendant, then took the stand. His little eyes seemed deeper set than ever, and his hard face did not unbend once during the examination. He testified in a ready manner, and as follows:

"My name is Frank Toal, and I was born in Ireland. Illved there over 20 years and in California 11 years. I was guite young when I came to America, and served an apprenticeship in horseshoeing in Massachusetts. I was there three years. I went to St. Louis and from there to California. I was one of the Fenian volunteers. I went to Canada. I went to New York from Canada and then to St. Louis. Los Angeles was the first place I struck. I worked in 1874. We lived about eight years as happy as people could live, be fore drink began to show on her.

"I still continued in the horse-she money. I put it im motion; bought some lots and it was successful. Drink makes my wife very boisterous and any complete the proposed with her and she came out and we were married in 1874. Mrs. Toal, on re-cross-examination, said that she had told Andy Toal's wife that Frank Toal had cut off her liquor and she would send him to San Quentin where he had come from, and then she could collect the rents and have all she wanted to drink.

Mrs. Matheson, on re-direct examination, testified that Mrs. Toal had said in her hearing that she had sent selling liquor to my wife. He ad me arrested for assault with intent to murder, and I don't remember the other public to sent to San Quentin for five years, but I was pardoned after I had been there two years.

"Then I came back to Los Angeles. I din not intend to live with my wife again. But when I saw they were preparing another attorneys' fight, I reconsidered, and for the sake of the children and to save the attorneys' fees we lived together. I got ashop. Mrs. Toal promised to stop drinking, and I did, but she didn't. She is a good woman when she is sober.

"We had trouble with an Italian about selling liquor. I had a gun once, and he got into a fight with me about his selling liquor to my wife. He dam earrested for assault to commit to save the charges and was pardoned after I had been there two years.

"Do you know anything about her drinking habits?"

This was objected to by the prosecution on the ground that it had nothing to do with her condition at the time of the cutting.

The defense claimed that they would show that she was a drunkard.

The Court said that it had been shown that her supply of iliquor had been cut off for three weeks, and sustained the objection.

Lieut.-Col. Palmer of the Seventh Regiment set forth the manner in which a company similar to the one proposed could be organized and maintained, and gave his views generally in favor of the organization.

The proposed manner and details of organizing were discussed at length by Mr. Simpson, Mr. Miller, Capt. Bell and others. A membership roll was then opened, and all present signed the same. A recruiting committee consisting of Messus. J. H. Simpson, chairman, W. G. Miller and R. E. McGregor was elected to secure additional names to the roll of membership.

The secretary was given full power to obtain all information possible as to the practicability of the company being mustered into the National Guard. The temporary officers were then made permanent, with the addition of 1.8. Sherman as vice-president, and the meeting adjourned, to meet again next Wednesday evening.

THE SLY KEE.

He Tried to Pick Up a Grip and a Bundle.

One of the cheekiest attempts at robbery ever attempted was perpetrated early yesterday morning by a Chinaman named Kee. A Mr. Jordan, a contractor for the Los Angeles Cable chinaman hamed Ree. A Mr. Jordan, a contractor for the Los Angeles Cable Railroad Company, was standing in front of the office on Main street talking to a friend. He had set a couple of valises and a bundle of clothing on the sidewalk near by, and was paying no particular attention to them, when Kee, the heathen ragpicker, came along with his basket. He took in the situation at a giance, and promptly nailed one of the "grips," slipping it in his basket. He took in the situation at a giance, and promptly nailed one of the "grips," slipping it in his basket. He then cut the string about the parcel and was helping himself to the contents, when the owner turned around and saw him. He took the heathen in charge, and held him until a telephone message could be sent for a policeman, when he turned him over to Officer Woodward, who brought him to the station. Yesterday afternoon Kee was taken before Judge Stanton, who gave him 25 days.

The Three Tickets and How They Were Nominated - The Bid of Orange Town for the Seat of Justice-Santa Ana with Girdled

ounty affecting the location of the eat of government and the officials to fill the new offices, is growing decidedly interesting as well as complicated Three conventions have been held and three tickets placed in the field. Two of these conventions met in Santa Ana and one here. The first of the Santa Ana conventions and the one held here were "non partisan;" the last conven tion at Santa Ana was straight Repub lican. The "non-partisan" feature of two of these conventions need not em barrass either very greatly, from the fact that there are but three Democrats on all the tickets. All the other candidates with one exception are Republicans, the exception being a Prohibitionist. Santa Ana opened the ball on Tuesday, July 2d, with a "non-partisan" convention which nominated the following ticket: Superior Judge, J. W. Towner of Santa Ana; District Attorney, E. E. Edwards of Santa Ana; County Clerk, R. Q. Wickham of Garden Grove; Recorder and Auditor, G. E. Foster of McPherson; Sheriff and Tax Collector, R. T. Harris of Westminster; County Treasurer, W. B. Hall of Tustin; County Assessor, Fred C. Smyth of Anaheim; Superintendent of Schools, John P. Greeley of Fullerton; County Surveyor, J. G. Shumacher of St. James; County Coroner, Dr. I. D. Mills of El Modena; Supervisors, First District, W. H. Spurgeon; Second, Jacob Ross; Third, (holds over); Fourth, W. G. McPherson; Fifth, A. Guy Smith. Mr. Towner and Mr. Wall are the only Democrats on this ticket. Dr. Mills is the Prohibitionist. Mr. Shumacher declines the nomination tendered him, and it is understood that S. O. Wood of Anaheim will be substituted by the committee. The second "non-partisan" convention was held here last Monday, 8th inst., and nominated the following: Superior Judge, I. E. Messmore of Orange; District Attorney, E. E. Edwards of Santa Ana; County Clerk, J. A. Pfeiffer of St. James; Recorder and Auditor, George J. Mosbaugh of Santa Ana; Sheriff and Tax Collector, T. J. Smith, Fifth District; opponent, S. B. Lewis.

The foregoing is the political situation up to date. The various combinations outlined leave but two offices in the county sought for by separate candidates as a result of the three conventions. These triangular and highly interesting contests are for the positions of Superior Judge and Sheriff, and the race lies between J. W. Towner and George L. Morgan of Santa Ana, and Isaac E. Messmore of Orange, two Democrats and one Republican, for the judgeship; and the three candidates for Sheriff and Tax Collector are R. T. Harris of Garden Grove, T. A. West of St. James and William Jerome of Tustin—all Republicans. These several candidates, and their friends, are making "Rome howl" all over this county, and while putting in work for themselves they are doing everything possible in behalf of their favorite place for county seat. Orange came to the front yesterday with the following proposition:

To the tax-paying voters of Orange

To the tax-paying voters of Orange county: Orange county is an established fact. The question which confronts every tax-payer in the county is, how shall we avoid high taxes?

The largest bill to be met is for county buildings.

The city of Orange offers the Rochester
Hotel as a free gift to the new county, provided the txx-payers select Orango as the ounty seat.
This building was built at a cost of $60

000, economically expended by individuals personally interested. The same building, if erected by a county organization, would cost at least $100,000—judging from the history of the past as to the erecting of public buildings.

As to the character of the building, we submit the following:

"March 16, 1888. "March 16, 1888.
"To whom it may concern: This is certify that I have been superintendent a number of public and other buildings in Southern California, among which are the Brunswick Hotel of Santa Ana and the Rochester Hotel of Orange.

"The Rochester of Orange, as regards the foundation, walls, woodwork, plastering, and in fact the entire construction, is the most substantial of any building with which have been connected.

"I will also state that, as compared with the Brunswick, the Rochester is decidedly superior as regards substantial workmanship.

E. A. Warner, "Superintendent."
A deed for this property has been placed in escrow with the bank of Orange.

The committee having charge of the The committee having charge of the Santa Ana interests pool-pool this proposition, and claim that the building is not only unsuitable for the purpose proposed, but is overrated as to value. They claim, moreover, that the proposition is in the nature of a bribe, and should not be countenanced on that account. The organ of the Santa Ana people calls upon Orange to put up the cash to any amount below $100,-000, which will be met by Santa Ana with a like sum to be expended on county buildings, regardless of the location selected by the voters of the county. county.

Orange laughs at the talk about orlange laughs at the tark about their proposition will not only save the tax-payers a heavy expense, but assures a building at once for the accommodation of the public, and a place for every county official.

HORATIO. RIVAL UNDERTAKERS.

An Unseemly Quarrel Over a Corpse.

A disgraceful dispute occurred yesterday between two undertakers about the burial of a dead body, which, if the facts as alleged are true, places the firm of Hopkins & McCoy in a peculiarly sad attitude. Yesterday morning a man named O'Neil, who has been rooming at Mrs. Creed's house, near the corner of Wilmington and Requens weeks. He was a member of the Hibernian Society, of which Mr. McCoy is also a member. Mrs. Creed, in whose house O'Neil died, is the mother-inlaw of James L. Cussen, of the firm of Hanrahan & Cussen, undertakers, on Los Angeles street. O'Neil has several relatives, who are friends of Mrs. Creed, and all wanted Mr. Cussen to attend to the funeral. He was notified that such was the wish of the parties concerned, and went down to take charge of the funeral.

In the meantime, however, Mr. McCoy had also got an express wagon, and he took a coffin down to the house, claiming, it is said, that he was authorized to go ahead with the necessary arrangements by the president of the Hibernian Society. The relatives of the deceased, however, insisted on streets, died after an illness of severa

Ribernian Society. The relatives of the deceased, however, insisted on Cussen having the funeral, and refused to allow McCoy to have anything to do with it. McCoy seemed determined to have the job, and it is said by the people at the house that he presented an order purporting to be from Health Officer MaoGowan, ordering them to turn the body over to him. This did not work, and he then telephoned for Coroner Merediih to go down, which that official did, but on finding out how the case steed, defined to get streed up in it. Casen went shead with his arrangements, however, and during the atternoon account of the police station for a policeman to go with him to the house to prevent trouble while he took the body away, and Officer Jackson was sent down, but as soon as he was told the facts he came away, and McCoy vacated the field.

The people interested are very hitter.

SANTA MONICA.

A Love-sick Young Man Badly
Fooled by the Boys.
SANTA MONICA, July 13.—[Correspondence of The Times.] Two or three weeks ago a good-looking blonde girl came down from Los Angeles with girl came down from Los Angeles with her family, who had rented a cottage on the beach. She is very comely, and Oscar, one of the employés of the Ar-cadia, fell hopelessly in love with her, and has been half crazy about her ever since. He could not manage to secure an introduction, however, so, summon-ing up his courage, he wrote her a love-sick epistle, telling of his great passion and pleading for a rendezvous. Sha ing up his courage, he wrote her a lovesick epistle, telling of his great passion and pleading for a rendezvous. She, much indignant, showed the missive to her family, and her brother took it and determined to play a joke on Oscar, and cure him of his fever. So he got his sister to indite a reply, stating that she would be on the bridge at 10 o'clock on Friday evening, and then he went and made arrangements with a lot of the boys. A few moments before the appointed time Oscar was on the bridge, beneath which were standing hidden about 40 fellows. As the footfall of the masher could be heard above, they struck up in grand chorus,
"I am waiting, my darling, for thee," and Oscar turned pale and fied. He has not shown up today, for, realizing how badly he has been sold, he is ashamed to put in an appearance.
Mr. H. C. Beville swam his thoroughbred horse Almont out far into the waves this afternoon, much to the entertainment of the loungers on the sand. Almont is full brother to Daisy F., but has never been trained for the course. When Mr. Beville bought him he was offered Daisy F. as well for $250 more, but declined. The next year Daisy F. was sold for $8000.

The members of the Casino are very much concerned over the fact that, unless the tennis courts are fixed up at once, it will be impossible to hold the general tournament here. An expense of $250 will be entailed, and subscription lists have been started to

The people interested are very bitter against McCoy, and accuse him of trying to frighten a lot of women into letting him have the body when he knew that they wanted the other man. The charge is also made that the doctor who attended the dead man brought McCoy to the house before the death of O'Neil, in consequence of which the doctor was very sharply criticised. WASHINGTON OF THE WEST.

Los Angeles is destined to become the Washington City of the Pacific Coast, unless its authorities destroy its hopes by a continuation of the shortand narrow-minded policy which characterized its career prior to the so-called boom times. For nearly forty years following the acquisition of this country by the Americans, Los Angeles remained, without exception. the most dead-and-alive, hold-back non-progressive town in the United States. There was in her population no energy, no ambition, no public pride or spirit. As a town, it seemed to be in the full enjoyment of a pro found sleep. Talk about improving or paving a street, or even making a side walk, and half the population, as soon as they could wake up to the subject, immediately thrown into were hysterics, particularly that por-tion who (without knowing it were most deeply interested in the improvement. Los Angeles was conspicuous for the lethargy which it inherited from the race of its founders and the aborigines, but when at last, by the inauguration of certain excursion parties from the far East, the town was aroused from its long slumber it sprang to its feet with a degree of vim that fairly astonished everybody, and the world has not yet reased to wonder at the exhibition. As one of the results of the awaken ing, but after much resistance from the old land-owners, and after most annoying and damaging delays, one or two streets, or rather small parts of streets, were properly paved and some sidewalks were laid down. These works were quite captivating in their effect. So absolutely pleasing and novel did it seem to ride over a smooth and passable street in Los Angeles that other streets were presently put in proper condition, and Los Angele has already her fair share of excellently payed thoroughfares. With the same rate of progress kept up she will in good time become for the Pacific what Washington is on the Atlantic-the most beautiful and attractive of cities. In many respects the parallelisms of the two cities is conspicuous. Their topography is not dissimilar. Washington has its Capitol Hill, its Island so-called, though it is not an island). its Boundary Hills, its Swampoodle, its fashionable West Eud, and so on, scattered over a wide area. In like manner Los Angeles has its Boyle Heights, its Pico Heights, its East Los Angeles, its West End and other quar ters spread over a wide space like city of magnificent distances." Los Angeles lacks the public buildings that grace the capital of the Nation, but she does not lack a climate and scenery and surroundings far in advance of he eastern rival. In all natural advantages Los Angeles is far ahead of any other city in the United States if not in the world.

But Washington was also once sleepy city. In slavery times it was anything but progressive. Public buildings were projected, but not one within its borders was completed. All were dragging along in a partially constructed and unfinished state. Her treets were in a horrible plight and her drainage frightful. She was a poor, unhealthy southern city at best, and, as a capital, a disgrace to the Repub lic. It languished under the blighting influence of slavery, but during the war which grew out of that institution, Washington was invaded, and, at times, overrun by the northern hordes. in much the same manner as Los Angeles, twenty years later, was overrun by eastern people. It was not a sanuinary war that brought the multitude to the latter place, but a war between opposing climates and two lines of transcontinental railways.

The infusion of new blood into Washing that city from one of the most repulsive into, as travelers concede, the handsomest city in the world. But, to make it what it is today, a wise system of public improvements had to be inaugurated. To begin with, proper grades, in reference to traffic drainage, were provided for all her streets, old as well as new, and in due time they were admirably paved. All these things in Washington were undertaken and carried through by the authorities with a single view to the public interest, the wishes and notions of private individuals being enirely ignored. The old inhabitants and land-owners protested vigorously, but the engineers and Master of Public Works were independent enough and honest enough to adhere to their sworn duty, and refused to be turned aside from their purpose by Mr. P. or Mr. B., or any other private citizen. The result of their faithful work is now before the world in the form of the most complete of cities, a monument to their skill and fidelity, more enduring than marble or brass. Los Angeles but had in charge of her improvements an equally independen and skillful set of officers, she might in a brief space of time, the beautiful capital of the Nation.

THE CENTENNIAL OF FRENCH LIBERTY.

Today is the hundredth anniversary of the first great break for liberty made by the French as a nation.

Since the inauguration of the French Republic, the quatorze Juillet has taken the place, as the national day of France, of the quaze Aout—the 15th of August—"Napoleon's day," which, during the third empire, was cele-brated throughout France with such pomp and circumstance. Then the good people of France were intoxicated with national glory, and willingly believed what Louis Napoleon told them-that "l'empire c'est la paix." Then, on each succeeding 15th of August, Paris was one great scene of ple, but who could blame them, in of the terrible outrages to which they had been subjected for so many centuries? It was at first feared by friends of France that the French had not in them the making of Republicans, but that belief has gradually given way to a confidence in the stability of the Republic. It is a dramatic episode which today's celebration commemorates. The bastille, the State prison and citadel 1369, by Charles V. Its walls were at 12 feet thick, and at the base 30 The dungeons were 19 feet beor 40. low the level of the courtyard, and five below that of the ditch, with no opening but a narrow loophole communicating with the ditch. The condition of prisoners confined for a long time in this den may be imagined. The inhuman treatment to which they were subjected has few parallels in the history of | enal cruelty, put there, as they were, without accusation or trial, on a simple lettre de cachet, and allowed no communication with

On July 14, 1789, after a brief deense, the Bastille was captured by the people, ransacked, and on the following day its towers were razed and its dungeons filled with the copings of its battlements. Among the persons found in its cells was one who had been a prisoner since his 11th year, and another who had passed 30 years in the Bastille. Besides this, records of worse horrors were found inscribed on the registers of the prison.

On this centennial anniversary, Columbia greets la belle France, and sincerely hopes that the French Republic may remain proof against the attacks of its open enemies and the insidious ssaults of its false friends.

THE TIMES has received information to the effect that Architect Young's plans for the proposed Reform School building at Whittier have been returned by the Governor without his approval. The Governor is reported as having declared that he will approve no plan unless the site embra at least 160 acres of land. The Whittier site is, we believe, only about onefourth of that size. Mr. Hervey Lindlev, one of the commissioners for cating the site, and who is personally and particularly interested in Whittier, will now have an opportunity to "hump himself" some more in the interest of reform and philanthropy. Let the operation begin!

It is sad. Here is a man who has been for thirty years or more a citizen of Los Angeles city or county, and a arge part of that time a newspaper publisher, being the originator of the first daily journal ever printed in this city; and yet, now that he is dead, his "name is spelled wrong in the ga-zette" of nine-tenths of his contemporaries who have had occasion to mention the event. "H. Waite," "James A. Waite," "Charles A. Waite," are a few of the styles in which the name of Alonzo Waite, late of the Santa Ana Herald, is printed by newspapers out-side of his own town. ## GRAVE CHARGES.

Were the Johnstown Funds Wasted?

The People of the Town Think the Money Was Misapplied.

Terrific Storms Sweep Over Several Eastern States.

The Interstate Commerce Railway Managers Meet at Chicago to Discuss Rates, but Fall to Harmonize.

By Telegraph to The Times.

JOHNSTOWN (Pa.), July 13.—[By the As sociated Press.] A large mass meeting of citizens was held this afternoon to protest against the manner in which the relief fund is being distributed. Burgess Horrell, in a speech, said the people of the valley should themselves have the disbursement of the contributions, as the State commission had shown no capacity for the work. He urged that the relief fund be as work. He urred that the relief fund be as speedily as possible distributed in money directly to the people to whose benefit it was donated, and that all purchases, contracts and expenses to be paid out of the fund immediately cease.

A resolution adopted states that if the assertion imputed to Gov. Beaver, that a million and a half dollars has already been expended in Johnstown and vicinity, has any foundation in fact, it is the strongest possible argument that the funds have not been wisely distributed. Only by gross extravagance and carelessness could such a sum have been used and the people have received no adequate return. The disbursement of the fund directly will provide for builders and furnish trade for the merchants; will stimulate business, restore confidence in the community, and thus directly and indirectly help those for whom the fund was intended. The resolution closed with an appeal to the custodians of the funds at Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh and other localities to transmit funds in their hands, intended for the Conemaugh Valley sufferers, direct to the local financial committee, to be distributed in cash on the requesting the State commission to furnish an intended statement of the expenditures to dista.

NEW WARSHIPS.

Trial Trips of the Baltimore and Petrel.

Washington, July 13.—1By the Associated Press.] Commodore Schley returned this morning from Philadelphia, where he had gone accompanying the new steel cruiser Baltimore on her first run out to sea. He is in a high state of satisfaction over the achievement of the new craft, which he will command as soon as she is put in commission. He calls her 'a magnificent ship," and says she will be one of the most formidable vessels afloat when fully equipped and armed. The run lasted three days. The trial was a complete success. The vessel was taken outside and was run through a heavy swell. She was unequipped and the guns were not compensated for by extra weights. Everything worked beautifully and pointed to a complete fulfilment of contract requirements.

Rey. J. H. Henry followed with a paper on "Church Music." He said: In discussing the question of church music, it will be necessary to view the music, it will be necessary to view the subject in its various departments, such as hymns, tunes, choirs, instruments, etc. I presume we will all agree in the statement that music is an essential element in church service, and that we could not dispense with it without very materially endangering the efficiency of the mighty force of Christianity in lifting the world up into the light of God. No careful observer but will admit that the song power of the church is today, as it has been in the past, a marvelous agency in attracting men to the seras it has beer in the past, a marvelous agency in attracting men to the service of the sanctuary and thence to the cross of Christ, hence could not be ignored without depriving the church of a right arm of power that would be suicidal in its elimination. Music has been regarded in all ages and among all nations as possessing a magic power inspiring the soul, nerving it for deeds of valor and daring that nothing else could approximate, it fires the soul and nerves the arm of the soldier until he becomes invincithat nothing else could approximate. It fires the soul and nerves the arm of the soldier until he becomes invincible. A western captain, as he lay on the battlefield of Shiloh, suffering greatly from a fatal gunshot wound through both thighs and from thirst, says: "The stars shone out clear and beautiful above the dark field, and I began to think of that great God who had given His son to die a death of agony for me, and that He was up there, up above the scene of suffering and above those glorious stars, and I felt that I was going home to meet Him and praise Him there, and I felt that I ought to praise God, even wounded and on the battlefield. I could not help singing that beautiful hymn: 'When I can read my title clear.' There was a Christian brother in the brush near me. I could not see him, but I could hear him. He took up the strain, and beyond him another, and then another and another caught it up all over that terrible battle-field until the echo resounded and we made the field of battle ring with hymns of echo resounded and we made the of battle ring with hymns of se to God."

led of battle ring with hymns of praise to God."

It inspires with hope the heart of the man of business who finds himself almost hopelessiy involved.

He said that we should sing hymns that are saturated with good theology and that voice the fundamental doctrines of our holy religion.

The hymns that inspired our fathers and mothers amid the din and dust and sweat of the battle, and enabled them to earn immortal crowns. So let us sing until our militant songs shall be merged in the triumphant song of Moses and the Lamb.

Rev. Will Knighten then delivered an address on "Relation of a Minister to Public Opinion." He said opinion means estimation, sentence, judgment. Public means the people, the State, the Nation. The attitude of the pulpit was ably shown in creating public sentiment, declaring the truth, defending the faith. The minister must oppose sin. He must lead in the fight against intemperance, divorce and the popular vices of today. In order to control public divorce and the popular vices of today. In order to control public opinion, he must educate the children, plan and organize for the future. "Pulpits are like high places;

Tried to Square Things. Yesterday morning about 3 o'clock, an hour or two after the arrest of the French prostitute, Prudence, for robbing old man Philmore of $125, a French "mac," named Baptiste Garnier, approached Officer Williams with a view to trying to "square" matters. Williams promptly placed him under arrest and brought him to the station, where he was locked up on "suspicion." Yesterday afternoon this charge was changed and his examination set for Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Later the woman was also brought into court and arraigned, her examination being set for Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The money has not been recovered. French "mac," named Baptiste Gar-

HISTORICAL MILESTONES SET UP ON THIS DATE.

Fort Mackinack-Marat, the French Revolutionist-Philip Augustus -Burned at the Stake-Capture of the Bastille.

An expedition against Fort Mackinack, the frontier United States post in Upper Michigan, which had been lost to the British in June, 1812, was p'anned in the spring of 1814, but differences in the Cabinet delayed its set-ting out from Detroit until the 14th of July, and, when it did reach the point, the walls of the fort were found too the walls of the fort were found too high to be battered down, and an assault was repulsed with trifling loss. A British schooner loaded with provisions, destined for the garrison, was captured, but the two vessels of the American squadron left to cut off communication with the fort were captured in September, and Detroit ones more began to be threatened with Indian incursions. MARAT.

more began to be threatened with Indian incursions.

MARAT.

The most odious figure in the French Revolution was that of Jean Paul Marat, the self-styled "friend of the people." By birth a Swiss of Calvinistic parents, he had led a strange, skulking life for 45 years—latterly, a sort of quack medicine pedler—when the great crisis of the revolution brought him to the surface as a journalist and member of the convention. Less than five feet high, with a frightful countenance and a maniacal eye, he was shrunk from by most people as men shrink from a toad; but he had frantic earnestness and hesitated at no violence against the enemies of liberty, and so he gained the entire confidence and affection of the mob of Paris. His constant cry was for blood; he literally desired to see every well-dressed person put to death. Every day his paper, l'Armi du Peuple, was filled with clamorous demands for slaughter. By the beginning of June, 1798, he was wading in the blood of his enemies. It was then that the young, enthusiastic girl, Charlotte Corday, left her native province for Paris, to avenge the death of her friend Barbaroux. She sought out Marat at his house and there, on July 14, 1793, was admitted to see him in his hot bath, and stuck a knife into his heart. His death was treated as a prodigious public calamity and his body was deposited with extravagant honors in the Pantheon, where public feel, ing took a turn for the better ere long, and the carcass of the wretch was ignominiously cast out. To contemporaries the figure of Marat has risen like a frightful nightmare; nobody seemed to know whence he had come or how he had spent his previous life.

PHILIP AUGUSTUS,
King of France, died on the 14th of July, 1223. His reign is chiefly remarkable for the success with which he labored to consolidate the power of the crown and overcome the intolerable oppressions of the feudal lords which entailed so much suffering upon the people. The most significant event of his reign was the battle of Bouvines, in which he vanquished the Emperor Otho of Germany. The communal forces furnished by the towns formed an important part of the army of Philip. These commoners drove against the Flemish knights at the top of their speed, but the latter were so indignant that the first charge was not made against them by knights, but by the despised rabble of the towns, that they remained motionless at their posts. But the commoners, seeing no need of humoring their knightly pride, thrust them roughly, upset them from their horses, slew many of them and forced them to leave the place or fight willy nilly. This was on August 27, 1214, and the battle thus opened soon became general and obstinate. The German knights directed all their blows against the French King, and made their way almost up to him. The commoners came to the relief of Philip, who had been thrown from his horse, but had quickly leaped upon another and dashed into the conflict anew. A vigorous sword thrust wounded Otho's horse and caused the animal to fly in the direction from which he had come. This accident turned defeat, into Nat, and the victory made France forever independent of Germany and gave another blow to the power of the feudal lords, under whose oppression the people had been so long suffering.

BURNED AT THE STAKE. On July 14, 1558, among the last victims of the religious persecutions under Murray, six persons who had been kept in miserable confinement in the palace of Bonner, Bishop of London, were burned at the stake at Brentford. On the preceding 27th of June seven other persons of the same party had met with a similar fate at Smithfield.

capture of the Bastille.

July 14, 1789, is the date of one of the most important events of history; it witnessed the capture and demolition of the bastille, the grim old fortress identified with the despotism and cruelty of the falling monarchy, and its destruction marked the end of a wicked system. On the walls were to be read the names of prisoners, the date of their incarceration, their prayers, their sufferings, the only memorials which the miserable men had left behind in their dungeons, to attest their prolonged existence and their innocence. These vaults then contained but seven prisoners, three of whom were shut up legitimately, family motives having withdrawn them from the judgment of the ordinary courts of law. Two of these prisoners had become insane, and were sent to a madhouse soon after their release. The third prisoner, who had been sent there by his father and was sent home, was recognized by no one and died soon after in poverty. The other four prisoners had been confined only four years, for forging bills of exchange, and were arrested in Holland on the requisition of the bankers they had defrauded.

MILLER'S NOTABLE CENTRAL AMERICAN DISCOVERY.

The Ruins Located After a Tedious Journey-Standing in the Midst of a Vast Ruin-Articles Uncovered-The Discovery to Be Followed Up.

EVANSVILLE (Ind.), July 8, 1889.— [Special Correspondence of The TIMES.] I have been driven home by yellow fever in Central America.

Our sojourn in Olancho, Honduras, was marked by a very important discovery, which we were not at liberty to divulge until the present time. While there, at Jutigalpa, we received, through an Indian trader, an intima-tion of a buried city, being hidden somewhere in the region of the upper Patook River. Sufficient information was obtained to warrant the belief that it was no hoax, and, for prudential reasons, I decided to undertake the visitation of it, with no other companion than an Indian guide. The information gleaned indicated that

THE RUINS WERE LOCATED far from any road or trail, and could only be reached at the expense of considerable hardship, but this did not siderable hardship, but this did not alter my determination.

We left Jutigalpa, going down the valley of Guayape, and proceeded by way of Catacamas and Rio Tinto to the Patook, which we encountered about 50 miles below Mahogany Falls, and not far from the large rubber camp of Nestor Gross. It required some considerable time to secure boats, after the river was reached, as the region is very sparsely inhabited by a few roving bands of Poyas Indians. But arrangements were finally completed and we proceeded up the Patook, leaving our mules behind.

Reaching the mouth of the Guampoo, its largest tributary, we entered that stream, by direction of my Indian guide, and after following its course about 15 miles we turned into another stream, known as Legarto. Just above its mouth we left our boats and proceeded on foot in a northwesterly direction, among many very high mountains. We had gone perhaps 10 miles, when we entered

A GREAT VERDANT VALLEY, which seemed hemmed in on all sides by very high mountains. After leaving the Legarto we found no trail ing the Legarto we found no trail whatever, and at times had to cut our way through the underbrush, and when the valley was reached its rank tropical vegetation seeemed almost impenetrable. We followed closely the foot of the mountains, until we came upon a number of fragments of carved stone, some lying upon the top of the ground and others partly covered by earth. A moment's observation convinced me that we were within the predicts of the ancient city though the guide ured the level of the grant ceiba, mahogany and rubber trees covered the whole section, but within 300 yards from where we had first stopped we found ourselves. STANDING IN THE MIDST OF A VAST

RUIN, which certainly owed its existence to a very remote period. Shafts of huge stone, broken columns and crumbling stone, broken columns and crumbling walls could be seen on every hand, while the ground was strewed with stone tables, implements, vases, urns, bowls and a multitude of articles, the work of ancient artists. We proceeded perhaps a quarter of a mile into the dense undergrowth, or as far as we could cut our way with machetes, and the evidences of an ancient civilization multiplied at every step.

We then skirted the edge of the val-ley, and more than two miles from the starting point found additional rains, showing that the city extended for that distance. It was impossible to do more than make this casual inspection, after verifying the first statements heard regarding the existence of the

A RICH FIND. Among the numerous articles observed, worthy of special mention, were immense tables of granite, made with one leg to stick in the ground, and which would weigh from 800 to 1000 pounds. There were bowls of the same stone so shaped as to sit on three legs and scooped out to a depth of six inches. These were finely chased with turtle and tiger heads carved on the body and handles, and varied in weight from 10 to 50 pounds. There were encient metates, or maize stones, used also at the present day for crushing corn. These were carved in the same way—some with human and snake heads. They were of all sizes, ranging from three pounds up to 800. At one point there were unmistakable evidences of an ancient workshop of stone, where no doubt many of the relics were made, as a multitude of large and small articles of a varied nature were heaped together, many of which were in an unfinished state.

After spending a half day amid these ruins, we turned back to bear the good news to our friends, and to proceed quickly to Tegucigalpa to secure certain exclusive privileges from the Government for excavation. We found President Bogran deeply interested in the subject of our find, and not only willing to grant us our request, but to extend any and all aid within his power to accomplish the excavation. I shall return there the latserved, worthy of special mention, were immense tables of granite, made with Journeying Through Nicaragua Volcanoes, Squalor and Fruit.

ISIXTH REGULAR LETTER. MANAGUA (Nicaragua), June 10.— [Special Correspondence of The Times.] We are in the city recently made famous by the alleged exploits of another "Jack the Ripper," but whose inhuman practices seem to have been purely a figment of the imagination, as the frightful stories published in the States were absolutely unknown to the people of this city. The foundation of the fairy tale, woven by some tion of the fairy tale, woven by some special correspondent along this coast, was a most barbarous murder of a lewd woman some months ago, in a bagnio of the city, whose throat was cut, breasts ripped open and bowels protruding from numerous knife wounds, but no appearance of any kindred practices to those of the now famous London fiend.

VOLCANOES.
In coming down to this city we made brief stops at both the volcanoes of Conseguina and Momotombo, two of the most noted in Central America. By reason of our route from Amapala to Zempisque, we were borne underneath the frowning heights of Conseguina, which is located upon a peninsula, overlooking Fonseca Bay. We had got into a calm before reaching the Estero Real for Zempisque, and utilized the opportunity to visit the volcano. The northern and eastern coast lines are very sandy, and a small stream of very hot water empties into the sea near where we stopped. This strange river has been often described, owing to its origin, of course. Conseguina and Momotombo, two of This strange river has been often described, owing to its origin, of course, to the volcano, and is impregnated with volcanic substances. It was described by Master Wafer as long ago as 1685. Pressing on we scrambled through the underbush and over the lava beds, up to an eminence where we might survey the effects of one of the most terrific volcanic eraptions of modern years. The crown of the mountain was literally torn to pieces, and great gorge-like seams ran down and great gorge-like seams ran down the side toward the sea, where its lava mingles with the white, rocky beach. The famous eruption occurred on the 20th, 21st and 22d of January, 1835. At that time, throughout this section, though many leagues from the moun tain,

THE SIERRAS TREMBLED to their foundation. A broad river which ran by its base was swallowed up, and its former bed has ever since been bare and desolate. Fearful darkness was produced by vast clouds of ashes, which were borne on the air for a distance of 200 miles, some falling at Truxillo, on the Atlantic Coast of Honduras. The tremblings were distinctly experienced throughout Guatemala and Mexico.

As we looked down into the awful crater of this monster, and reflected upon the terrors of his last eruption, we could but shudder at the consequences of another. The lips of the crater are barren and jagged, with sharp black-and-white streaks of volcanic stone, which one could easily canic stone, which one could easily imagine the

All around were evidences of the frightful catastrophe of a half century ago. The courses of the lava streams were observed by the barren tracks down the sides, where they had blighted all vegetable growth. The shattered crown of the mountain, the deep seams and gulches down its slopes, the vast tons of cinders and heaps of volcanic rock, all pointed to its last eruption.

The view from the summit was very fine as we stood 2000 feet above the sea level, overlooking the ocean and the fine as we stood 2000 feet above the sea level, overlooking the ocean and the bread Bay of Fonseca upon one side and three republics in another. The dim outlines of the Salvador and Honduras shores could be seen, skirted by forests of mangrove, cocoa and paims, while we could look a long distance over the swamp forests of Nicaragua, which we were soon to penetrate. A wild waste of uninhabitable country borders this part of Nicaragua, through which the sluggish esteros make their way to the sea.

SQUALID ZEMPISQUE.

SQUALID ZEMPISQUE. We finally descended the mountain regained our boats and took up the journey to Zempisque, going up the Estero Real. We soon reached the journey to Zempisque, going up the Estero Real. We soon reached the miserable little fever-invested village, with its endless mud-flats, sand-flies and mosquitoes. Thirty-five years ago, Mr. Wells, the first historian of this immediate section, said of this village: "I cannot now recall a picture of more squalid wretchedness. The croaking zopolitie sits brooding over the miry waste, like its evil genius, while sickly mangroves are outstretching their gaunt, skeleton arms, as if decoying the unwary to the embrace of death."

This picture is not overdrawn and is applicable to the present, as it was at that time, and we did not long tarry within its precincts. We secured mules immediately for Chenandega and traversed a solitudinous, wooded section of country, very sparsely populated and affording but little interest to the casual traveler. After a ride of four hours we reached Chenandega, where we remained until morning. This is a city of some commercial importance, having about 8000 inhabitants and the center of a large trade in fruits. It is reputed to be a city of great antiquity, from certain records and evidences found by the early Span-ia rds, as, at the time of the conquest, it was a flourishing commercial center of the Caciques. It has also a later historical interest. In 1685 it was sacked by a band of freebooters, under the notorious DeLussan, who, with his buccaneers, had harbored in Fonseca Bay.

FRUIT HEADQUARTERS. The handsome Cathedral of San Pedro, which was formerly adorned redro, which was formerly adorned with great riches, is an imposing edifice, which was 27 years in construction, being finished in 1706. A congress of the Central American independent States took place here in 1824, when the federation was formed, but the pact was soon afterward dissolved. This city is the headquarter for most of the finest fruits of Nica for most of the finest fruits of Nicaragua, its oranges and pineapples being especially superb. For quality and delicious flavor they are not excelled anywhere. We had an opportunity the next morning of seeing its market in all its glory. In addition to an endless variety of fruits, numerous articles of native work were upon exhibition. We particularly noticed their superbly woven hammocks and the many designs carved upon the native calabashes. This latter work was as delicate and ingenious as any similar work could be done by experts in the States.

OFF FOR THE OLD CAPITAL. When all was ready the next morn ing we took the railway train for Leon, the old capital. The coaches and accommodations were not the best, but such a vast improvement upon muleback travel that the careworn traveler will unhesitatingly pronounce them good. They have first and second-class coaches, but the distinction is mostly in name, and most any one was allowed to tumble through the ladies' car, and to use sometimes very ugly language in their presence. You can't get any check for your baggage and must trust to luck for ing we took the railway train for Several lofty volcances came into view, and on every side of the valley arcse rugged chains of mountains, with many of their highest peaks above the clouds. In this plain, however, we experienced the hottest weather encountered in Central America, the thermometer ranging from 90° to 100° in the shade. Within two hours we had reached Leon and were comfortably quartered at our hotel. The news had just reached the city that yellow fever was spreading at Port Limon, and the rumor of its appearance at Greytown, and the intelligence had caused some excitement. We shared their trepidation, as we had intended to visit that same locality within the next few days. At Managus we could to visit that same locality within the next few days. At Managua we could hear the latest and most authentic reports, and resolved to push on to that point by the next train.

We spent our waiting time in strolling over Leon,

THE LARGEST CITY OF NICARAGUA.
The city was founded in 1523 by Hernandez de Cordova, the founder also of Grenada. Its original site was some distance from the present city, nearer to Lake Manogua, the ruins of which still exist. This site was abandoned in 1610 for the present one. There is a tradition that a curse was prepaying the Pope against the doned in 1610 for the present one. There is a tradition that a curse was pronounced by the Pope against the old city, on account of the murder there of Father Valdeveiso in 1549, and that under this anathema the city was visited by a succession of calamaties, which became insupportable. The city has several magnificent churches, whose founding dates back to the Spanish régime. The Cathedral of St. Peter, one of the largest and finest structures in Central America, was finished in 1743, at a cost of $\frac{2}{2},000,000. It was nearly 40 years in construction, It was nearly 40 years in construction, being made of cut stone and very durable. By special permission we were allowed to go through and examine the Interior, which is finished in the Moorish style, characteristic of all of the churches in this country. It has been robbed of most of its former rich tapestries, golden candelabras and altars, yet it still preserves a gorgeous appearance. The building, constructed so strongly, has often been

UTILIZED AS A FORTRESS.

During the revolution of 1825, headed y Sacano and Salas, no less than 30 pieces of cannon were planted upon the roof of this cathedral, and after a pieces of cannon were planted upon the roof of this cathedral, and after a desperate siege of four months the rebels were compelled to retire. We encountered numerous ruins about the city, which very much marred its beauty. Upon inquiry, it was found that these were caused by the forces of Honduras and Salvador, who captured and sacked the city in January, 1845. Fully $2,000,000 worth of property was destroyed at that time, and very little of it has been restored. It was again subjected to much damage, during the regime of the fillouster, Gen. William Walker. From the effects of these revolutions it has never recovered. It contains about 30,000 inhabitants, though formerly double that number. It is a great political center, and generally the fountain of opposition to the reigning party.

We left Leon rather hurriedly and pressed on to Managus, the capital city. Here the reports of the fever were fully confirmed, and it required no additional warning to us, as we at once determined to turn back, and not go over the casal line as contemplated. From here we will proceed direct for Guatemala.

THE KING OF THE BASS.

GREAT JEWEISH IN HIS NATIVE LAIR.

What He Is, and How to Catch Him-Towing a Boat-A 400pound Catch at Catalina-Graphic Description of the Sport.

AVALON (Santa Catalina Island), fuly 9.- [Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Two days ago a small boat sailed out of the little harbor of Avalon, containing two well-known cit-izens, Mr. Charles Bell of Pasadena and Mr. Ernest Watson of Duarte. went out as private citizens, but in less than two hours Mr. Bell had the choice of governorship of the island, the mayoralty of Avalon, the freedom of the city in a box, while Mr. Watson was knighted the Duc de Catalina.

HAIL TO THE CHIEFS. The distinguished gentlemen carne in with a roar of guns, yells, shouts, rowing with one hand and firing broadsides with the other, while on the beach all Catalina, from the guests of the Hotel Metropole to the oldest inhabitants, gathered to welcome them. The cause of all this uproar, that turned a complete city upside down, was that Mr. Bell and Mr. Watson had caught the first jewfish of the season, that is, the first big one, and were towing it in. As the little boat neared the beach, the cheers and shouts grew louder, and a roar and hum of voices sounded when an enormous bunch of something was seen floating astern. The little boat crunched onto the sands, Mr. Watson shook hands with half the population of Avalon and Mr. in with a roar of guns, yells, shouts.

Bell with the other haif, and then the rope was manned by all the inhabit-ants who could obtain a hold, and dragged in triumph up upon the musical pebbles.

The crowd surged about in wender and astonishment at its size, and the fortunate fishermen were congratulated again and piled with questions.

Mr. Bell is the champion jewfish catcher of Catalina. He has a record of 16 jewfish in one season, and what he does not know about them and all other fish here is not worth knowing. He caught an eight-foot shark Saturday, the 400-pound jewfish on Sunday and Monday a big catch of barracouda, and if he tows in a 40-foot whale Wednesday no one will be surprised.

THE STORY.

When alongside, and after it had been dury to the first it was a beauty and work of sold of people who were watching he mane uvers of Messrs. Phillips and Webster.

So violent were the rushes of the great fish that it was almost impossible to control it, and deep cuts worn by the line in the side of the boat testify to the violence of its sounding. It took six or eight men to haul the big fellow upon the beach and he came upon the beach and the town one will be surprised.

THE RECORD.

The fish was not so heavy as the Bell-Watson catch, but was a beauty; being one inch less than ist feet in least the properties. THE STORY.

"We have," said Mr. Bell, "been trying to catch a jewfish for several days and lost one large hook in the operation. This time we anchored near Pebble Beach, just off the bot-

"I felt a gentle pull at the line, and I slacked out to give him time to take it in; then I reached down close to the water and jerked it into him. Away he went with a rush; making the line hum, and taking the colls out so fast you couldn't see them. When he slacked up a triffe I got the line over my leg and stopped it a little, and then the hauling and pulling began. The point is not to let the fish get any slack, but to keep it taut and take in as quickly as possible. This I did; hauling when I had the chance, then listening to the line hissing, almost smoking, through my fingers. As soon as we hooked the fish I thought it was a shark, and Mr. Watson hauled up the anchor. All this time the fish was towing us around in all sorts of directions at something like race-borse speed, but finally I got him well in hand and hauled his head under the stern, and as he turned over I sent a bullet from my revolver through his heart. The blood spouted two or three feet and his struggles ceased." "Then." put in Mr. Watson, "we shook hands for 10 minutes." "After that," continued Mr. Bell, "we took a couple of halihitches around his tail to make a sure thing, and slowly towed him in. The rest you know." The jewfish was braced up upon the beach, its fins propped up in natural shape, and photographed with Mr. Bell and Mr. Watson standing in suggestive attitudes over it—a cut of which is here given.

The jewfish was then handed over to the executioner, and I had the privilege, thanks to Mr. Bell and Mr. Watson, of examining him externally and internally.

Next to the tarpon, it was one of the most impressive fishes it was ever my good fortune to see. There is a large stuffed one in the museum of the Academy of Sciences in Philadelphia, but it conveys but little idea of the size of this, the king of the bass.

until it is five feet or more in length, four feet or more in circumference and from three to four hundred pounds in weight; give it the big, blue eyes of an ox, a powerful tail capable of knocking a man down, a rich, greenishbrown coating of scales, and you have the jewfish.

It is simply a gigantic member of the bass family (Labracidae), to which the rock bass, the eastern striped bass, black sea bass and others belong, and is known to naturalists as the Pacific hard-scaled bass—a poor name at best, as the scales, while large and hard, are not remarkably so, and as the jewfish it is and always will be known.

SOME MORE FISH STORY.

SOME MORE FISH STORY. "Speaking of the power of the jew-fish," said Mr. Bell, "some years ago I was down the island fishing when we fastened on to a big fellow, and after some little difficulty managed to get him into the boat. We thought he was dead, but my companion was bending over him to fix the line when the fish gave a bend, lifted its big tail, and the next thing I saw was my friend flying through the air. The look of astonishment on his face was benomenal. As they say, you could look of astonishment on his face was phenomenal. As they say, you could have hung a hat on his eyes, they stuck out so. He was dumped fairly overboard and went down with a cigar in his mouth and came up a few seconds later in the same condition. I was so convulsed with laughter that I could not help him, but I can assure you that after that he had a decided respect for the jewfish." * * * LOUD APPLAUSE.

Few writers are so amply provided with illustrative material. These stars mean another jewfish. While stars mean another jewfish. While chronicling Mr. Bell's experience, I heard loud cheers and demoniac yells, and upon looking out of the window, saw a small boat pulling in with a huge body astern—another jewfish, the third taken in three days.

Going down to the beach I found the lucky fishermen to be Mr. Phillips and E. C. Webster of Pasadena, the former having caught the fish. They had been off the pebble beach half a mile below, and had several bites before the big fellow was hanled to the surface. When alongside, and after it had been Tuesday—Fifty pound jewfish, M. Campbell-Johnston and F. W. King.

Wednesday—Two hundred, or over, pound jewfish, Phillips and Webster, and today I am going out with Mr. Bell, under heavy bonds to break the record.

The other fishing is excellent. Within 10 minutes row of the Metropole, we took 25 fine bass, white fish and sheepshead yesterday, some averaging seven or eight pounds a piece.

By the courtesy of Mr. Charles McCandleis I obtained a fine photograph of the big jewfish. We propped him up on the beach, arranged the dorsal fins in an upright position, placed a about three times her size), and so secured a graphic picture, which will be forwarded in due time and from which filled with enormous roe, the pebble beach undoubtedly being the favorite spot where it is deposited.

JEWFISH CRAZY. A natural result of this catch was that every inhabitant of Avalon had jewfish steak for dinner, and the chef of the Metropole served it up in various ways. That fried was most appetizing. It tastes not unlike halibut, being firmer and without any distinctive flavor. The meat in cutting it up resembles that of a beef. The eyes were large and exceedingly beautiful in color. The jewfish is now the rage, and parties are made up every day to fish for them, and when it is known that they run up to 500 pounds and 7 or 8 feet in length, it can be understood that a man grows in his own estimation after having caught one. jewfish steak for dinner, and the chef

MUSIC HATH CHARMS.

UNDER THE MAGIC SPELL IN MANY LANDS

Tinkling Bells, Blaring Trumpets, Sonorous Horns, Celestial Sounds and the Inextinguishable Los Angeles Burro—Swaying Palanquins and Plashing Paddles.

In a climate such as that of Southern California, and more especially that of Los Angeles, with its dreamy, sensuous days, and cool, invigorating nights, one can live on in lazy luxuriance of life, provided one has not to break the magic spell by stern necessity's call to chase the nimble and elusive dollar through the highways and byways of life, and just such a dreamy existence makes one poetic, eminently so; as also developing a taste for music. Ah, music! What would life be without that one alloy? Insipid! How various also are the styles of music? Have you also are the styles of music? Have you ever traveled? Have you by chance, in British India or Burmah, ever heard the distant tinkling of many bells, the softened blare of trumpets and horns, while ever between the rise and swell of the far off barbaric clang or the monotonous cadence of the tom-tom asserts itself on the midnight air? And you meantime recline at full length in a palanquin, while sleepily blinking at the myriad stars of an oriental night sky and listen in dreamy complacence not alone to those faint sounds, but to the nearer song of your trusty "bearers," those who, bearing your palanquin on their shoulders, swiftly sweeping through the jungle with an easy, measured pace, half trot, half walk, lull your senses to sleep with their musical yet monotonous chant:

Ho, ho—ha, ha, ha, Him, him—him, him.
Or, perchance, perched in a ham-much-needed sieste, while all around nature seems to palpitate and throb again under the fierce light of a burning sun; the midday hours, when everything and everybody appears to be sunk in stupor, earth and water alike exhaling a quivering, gaseous vapor, and reflecting with intolerable brilliancy the rays of the African sun; have you then, when, possibly, just about to drop your cheroot from relaxed lips, or let fall your book from nerveless fingers, been roused back to life by the plash of approaching paddles, and while the plaintive tones of the conch float over the water, you raise your lazy eyes to see a canoe go raise your lazy eyes to see a cance go gliding by, the quick-moving paddles flashing back the light from their dripping blades, or breaking into glittering eddies the glassy surface of the water, the ebony-hued skins of the rowers, almost nude, glistening and oily to sight, and their strangely mu-sical yet barbarous song ringing in your ears, something like this:

Hey ma'ma, hey merilimboo, Deriah ma'ma, hey merilimb

There is both music and poetry there, dear reader. Then the Chinese—but we have them here, and can hear them, alas! Is it not strange that a race which claims to have originally obtained the divine affatus of music from heaven in some nursical manner. tained the divine amatus of music from heaven in some mystical manner long ages ago, should have so mixed up the harmonies as to have eventually evolved a scale which, when in active operation, may be compared to the wall of a Thomas cat and the squeak of an untuned fiddle, with a running accompaniment of fire crackers and the occasional explosion of a torpedo? Yet the soul of the almond-eyed son of Confut-zee revels in such music, and he is ever ready to pause and brace his nerves by listening to its strains floating from an attic. The aboriginal

Australian and the dusky son of Fee-jee can evolve strange and awe-inspir-ing sounds from conch and shell, with the invariable accompaniment of deep ing sounds from collect and start, when the invariable accompaniment of deep drum or gong notes.

But to continue the review would be tedious. We have modern music, of course, and our own aboriginal redskins can evolve strange notes on occasion, it must be confessed. Yet all pale into insignificance before the notes of one sweet singer, one melodious vocalist, who may be termed champion of the earth, and who is indigenous to our soil. His prototype can be found in divers places and other lands, but the simon pure article, never. History and tradition alike have assigned him to us, and we have come to habituate ourselves to his peculiarities, and to accept his pean of joy, or disgust, when he lifts his sonorous voice in song, with silent acquiescence; yet, like all good things, an excess of it cloys, and one would fain retire oft times to a far off nook where his notes could not be heard, or consign him bodily to Hades instead when the spirit of music and of song have taken what to us appears undue hold upon him. If any person or persons wishes to hear him, by calling at this office between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. we will willingly accommodate him, her or them with a chair or chairs, and by sending round for a certain mule team which makes its stamping ground in the immediate vicinity, on First street, the vocalization can speedily be heard in all its poetic, musical profuseness, and our claim as to Los Angeles possessing the musical prodigy of the day be amply verified.

ANCIENT PLEASANTRIES.

ANCIENT PLEASANTRIES, The Torture Instruments of Olden

Time.

MUNICH (Bavaria), June 17, 1889.—
[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] In a dim chamber of the castie at Nuremberg to which we descended, was gathered some of the instruments of torture of the bad old times. A feeling of duty to see how cruel man has been attracted me, though these things are so repulsive. I was irresistibly drawn to them as I once was to see a negro whipped in a town in the South. The appealing yells of the poor fellow reached my ears while in the hotel and I was impelled to follow the sound to the guardhouse, where I looked in through the barred window. A man stripped stark naked lay on the floor, and by the dim light I could see the officer standing over him and welting him with the big leather whip. The negro rolled over and turned his face up and pleaded for mercy for God's sake, saying that he had only gone to the next plantation to see his wife. He was made to roll back again so as to receive the lash on his back.

That was awful, God knows, but the whips we saw here were tipped with iron wire, and must have cut deep into the flesh. Here also was the British cat-o'-nine-tails and the Bussian knout. Spell this word "knots," and it gives a vivid ides of the instrument, which is leather. At intervals along the lash are balls of iron, and as this comes down it must bruise most unmereifally. And here was the veritable rack—a table longer than a man, a windlass at each end. Ropes fast to the ankles and to the wrists passed to the windlasses, and the long arms of the rollers gave immense power to stretch and lacerate the muscles and characteristics. MUNICH (Bavaria), June 17, 1889.

the windlasses, and the long arms of the rollers gave immense power to stretch and lacerate the muscles and dislocate the joints. On some of the racks were also other rollers about the middle, on which the man laid. These revolving rollers were armed with pins, and as the poor human body was dragged backward and forward over them these pins punched into him. "The wheel" has a projecting from its edge, and as this is rolled across the body it crushes the bones. A chair was closely studded on the seat and back and sides with the seat and back and sides with sharp-pointed conical bits of wood, and on these the victim was forced to sit. The iron "virgin" is a construction larger than a man. The front consists of two panels open on hinges and reveals a cavity large enough and shaped like the human body. The cavity or mold for the victim is studded with sharp spikes; he is thrust into this and the front doors are closed upon him. The part of the mold in the doors is also furnished with spikes, two of which, horrible to relate, are arranged so as to enter the eyes! This, therefore, is the most merciful, because one could not live long after such treatment.

fore, is the most merciful, because one could not live long after such treatment.

These horrors, great as they are, do not, however, equal those of every battle; and though I would not minimize by an iota the miseries of the Johnstown disaster, the agony of being swept by an irresistible flood into a fiery furnace, the distress of seeing those most dear drowned, crushed or burnt before one's eyes, and the long, drawn-out misery of a long, life-suffering—what is all this to war? Remember Borrodino, when 20,000 were killed outright and 40,000 more men with all their animals were left on the battlefield to pass a night of agony! Every inhabitant of Los Angeles taken out into the streets and crushed, maimed, wounded, and all their horses, also much cattle. The wail that rose from those on that bloody battlefield of Russia was not an intermittent, sharp cry, but rose like the roar of the sea in one long, hoarse appeal, wherein the groan of one was not distinguishable. The moon and stars looked down cold and unpityingly on their tribute to Napoleon's ambition, and some may even make a jest about war, while others may be carried away by the thought of glory. Gen. Grant depicts no glory, but paints the sad and gloomy side, and said: "Let us have peace."

There were some grotesque and even laughable things in the chamber of torture, mixed in with the thumbscrews, the clamps to put on the leg, which was then mashed into a jelly of broken bone and flesh, etc. Masks of hideous shapes were there to put on petty criminals; pear-shaped instruments which when put in the month were sprung open, to the terrible pain and agony of the sufferers. But there are horrors still here today, when are in arms in Europe, all learning the trade of the hired assassin. Yours, Horace J. Smith.

THE COUNTESS ANNIE DE MON-

Old Houses and Old Styles-Sorosis Beauties-The Langtry-Senator Hearst and Some Horses

NEW YORK, July 4 .- [Special Corespondence of THE TIMES. | Ten years ago New York architects seem to have been imbued with but a single architectural conception, and that was devoted to the perpetuation of the acres of abominations known as "brown-stone fronts." Most of the streets below Central Park present the uniformity of a regiment of regulars, even the doorknobs and the newelposts being all of the same pattern.

A reaction has taken place within the past decade, and the designs of the buildings erected in the upper portion buildings erected in the upper portion of the city seem to have been borrowed from old medieval fortresses or colonial government mansions. I have in mind one of these recent structures whose exterior recalls that of an Elizabethan baronial hall, with its round, tower-like fagade and mullioned windows embowered in robes of ivy and Virginia creeper, while the interior is a revelation of unexpected nooks and corners. In the hall is a high-backed, oaken settee, cushioned with faded Flemish tapestry, and from the vantage ground of a lofty window-seat one can catch a glimpse of the panorama of forest and river in Riverside Park. The noble reception-room, ceiled with wooden rafters, brings with it a reminiscence of Puritanical days, and of prim ancestors in broad-brimmed hats and dames in stiffly starched caps and kerchiefs. The vast apartment is lighted from above, and the garish sunlight sifts softly down, mellowed by curtains of thin amber silk.

A row of windows, too high to admit of a view of the dusty street, shuts away the familiar sights and sounds of city life, and one might fancy oneself transported back to the primitive days when we were loyal subjects of the English George.

The furniture of this apartment was part of the bridal plenishing of a grandmother of the delightful old lady who is the presiding genius of the place. There were drop-lear tables of solki mahogany black with age, and shining with a lustre which bore silent testimony to the industry of generations of serving maids; picturesque and uncomfortable fiddle-backed chairs, and roomy chests of drawers with claw-feet and brass lion-head handles.

Quaintly patterned carpets from the Orient were flung upon the floor, with here and there a Moorish preverving of the city seem to have been borrowed roomy chests of drawers with claw-feet and brass lion-head handles. Quaintly patterned carpets from the Orient were flung upon the floor, with here and there a Moorish prayer-rug, the colors dimmed by contact with the knees of some faithful follower of Mohammed. In one corner was a huge vase of yellow Chinese porcelain, and a great glazed jug of brown earthenware, painted with tall spikes of purple fleur de lus, held a bunch of gorgeous roses. From one side of the ceiling hung a fishnet, as if just stretched there to dry, and from unlooked-for nooks gleamed a jar of gold and crimson cloisouni, while on a narrow wooden shell was a row of grandma's best blue willow-patterned platters. A silver salver or long-necked ewer flashed from an old oaken cupboard, and just beyond, suspended by a pale-blue ribbon, was the stirrup of a favorite racing mare.

Learywhert there was a rice of greatures, which almost concealed the darkly-stained walls, and a grandfather's clock asserted its antiquity by ticking aggressively and uttering an asthmatic wheeze when striking the hour.

My hostess parted an Egyptian porastimatic wheeze when striking the hour.

My hostess parted an Egyptian portière, disclosing a small room whose predominant characteristic was the old English fireplace, with its carved mantel and brass firedogs, piled high with logs. In the chimney corner stood an ancient spinning-wheel, and leaning from the latticed casement, I seemed to see Priscilla, with a damask rose at her breast in express converse.

rose at her breast, in earnest converse with bold John Alden, who stood without.

An atmosphere of Puritanism and dead rose-leaves seemed to brood over the spot, and the dignified dame in snowy kerchief and cap fitted admirably into the old-time surroundings of the picture.

A less pretentious home is that of Mrs. Louise Thomas, the ex-president of Sorosis. The ancient four-post mahogany beds are over a hundred years old, and almost as spacious as a room in a modern flat, while the stiff-backed sofas and chairs seem to guard the place like grim and silent sentinels. An uncompromising neatness pervades this abode of culture and refinement, and it is here that the gifted woman exercises a discriminating, yet lavish, hospitality. I can recall her in her simple gown of black silk, her lace collar pinned with the "S," in diamonds presented by her sisters of Sorosis.

Robert, a bright little negro boy, his nating, yet lavish, hospitality. I can recall her in her simple gown of black silk, her lace collar pinned with the "S," in diamonds presented by her sisters of Sorosis.

Robert, a bright little negro boy, his countenance irradiated with an expansive smile, passes cups of fragrant Bohea to the guests, and a pretty girl dispenses crisp tea biscuits from an old-fashioned china cake basket.

Pretty Mrs. Clymer, the president of today, is a frequent visitor, and one can scarcely realize that this woman, who looks no more than 25, is the mother of a young man of 20. I saw her once gowned in white satin, while folded about her shoulders was a shawl of creamy lace, and on her arm she carried a big reticule of drawn satin. Mrs. Clymer's Madonnalike countenance was framed in a halo of satin and lace airily perched upon her soft blonde hair, but this infinitely becoming toilette would have been unfattering to any woman but herself.

Mrs. Hoyt is another Sorosis beauty. She is of the fervid Spanish type, her features reminding one of those of an Athenian goddess on an intaglio. The quaint style of wearing the hair would be trying to another woman, and the tout ensemble reminds one of that of a dame of fair Seville who had stepped down for a moment from her frame in the family picture gallery.

From women tomen is an easy transition, and I was forcibly reminded the other day of the fact that many of the brightest ideas in journalism emante from the brains of very youthful men. The millionaire backers of the New York Graphic are fully alive to this fact, for two talented young journalists ably fill the editorial chairs, and have succeeded in invasing new life into the sheet, which at one time threatened a dismal failure. Messrs. Stoddard and Sutton are both under 80, and have displayed great tact and ablity in the management of the paper. Mr. Frank Sutton has just written a play, and is engaged upon a continuation ones, as she has just beaten her cook in a suit brought by him against her for the preparation of toothsome midnight refections for Mr. Gebhardt. Late suppers and a life of pleasure have left their imprint upon the Lity's countenance, although her incomparable figure is as perfect as ever, her excellent constitution withstanding the wear and tear of time.

Clara Louise Kellogg, on the contrary, looks as fresh and fair as she did years ago, although her figure has taken on many pounds of avoirdupois during the last few seasons. With her marriage she seems to have acquired a years ago, although her figure has taken on many pounds of avoirdupois during the last few seasons. With her marriage she seems to have acquired a fresh lease of youth, and appears as contented and happy as possible.

Mr. Maurice Strakosch seems to be possessed of one idiosyncrasy, and that is the acquisition of an unlimited wardrobe. Whenever he goes abroad he makes large purchases of clothes in London, and those who know him best say that he doesn't patronize the swell tailors, either. He forgot, the other day, to pull off the tags that dealers put on ready-made garments, and the label bore the name of one of the largest London outfitters. In quantity, if not in quality, he can vie with Berry Wall, the defunct king of the dudes, or the newly fledged sovereign of the fops who bears the romantic name of Onativia.

Senator Hearst has returned from his Mexican jaunt, and is domiciled for the present at the Hoffman House, the Hotel Hollywood at Long Branch being another of his summer abiding places. He was, much to his regret, too late for the suburban races, but was in season for the Realization stakes at Sheepshead Bay, and manifested great enthusiasm over the entries of his friend, J. B. Haggin.

At the recent sale of yearlings from Haggin's ranch, the sporting Senator acquired, by purchase, a female relative of Dewdrop, paying $10,000 for the privilege of possessing the sleek-coated animal who bids fair to rival the running record of her renowned brother. Senator Hearst has quite recovered privilege of possessing the sieek-coated animal who bids fair to rival the running record of her renowned brother. Senator Hearst has quite recovered from his recent attack of malarial fever, and says that he has no intention, as rumor asserts, of visiting Europe this year.

Handsome Eugene Dewey, who created such a furore in San Francisco circles 10 years ago, is said to have been vanquished by the charms of a metropolitan belle. The blandishments of the beauties of the Pacific Slope failed to touch his adamantine heart, and the fair ones consoled themselves by believing him to be impervious to the shafts of Cupid. However, the old French proverb is a true one, as it says: "Everything comes to him who waits."

Over 4300 acres have been sold since February, 1, 1883. The soil is a deep, rich, sandy loam, very easy to cultivate. An inexhaustible supply of water.

Apples, Peaches, Pears, Prunes, Figs, Plums, Cherries, Persimmons Raisins and Table Grapes, Loquats, Quinces, Apricots, Olives, English Walnuts, Chestnuts and Peanuts, as well as Grain and Vegetables of all kinds, grow to the highest degree of perfection WITHOUT IRRIGATION.

Mr. Milton Thomas and Mr. R. M. Town of this city, and Mr. Byron O. Clark of Pasadena, Cal., the well-known and experienced nurserymen have purchased large tracts of these lands and planted them to orchards. They regard them as the very best lands in Los Angeles county for the cultivation of deciduous fruits, Olives and English Walnuts, and owing to their near proximity to Los Angeles City, the cheapest lands in Southern California at the price they are now offered.

Purchasers can make arrangements at the office of this company to have their lands planted in truits and vines of their own selection, and cared for 1, 2 and 8 years at the actual cost. Apply to

OLD YORKER'S JOE-A STORY OF CALIFORNIA.

A Nice Little Letter-Happy Joe at Last-A Pretty Home at Oakland -Joe's Good Friend, the Doctor -Going to 'Frisco.

CHAPTER III.

"What are you going to do now, boy?" said the man who worked the claim next to Sandy's, as Joe sat down by the newly-made grave and cried claim next to Sandy's, as Joe sat down by the newly-made grave and cried silently for his last earthly friend.

"Oh, please don't ask me, I don't know; let me stay here awhile," he sobbed, and the man turned away and went down to the camp, where the people had gathered in little groups to talk about the child, each asking 'who will take him?" Few had been successful during the winter, and the women who were able to work were taxed already beyond their strength, so so one spoke the words old Sandy had when Joe wept before over the grave of his mother.

"I'm going to 'Frisco Monday," said the tall miner who had spoken to Joe at the grave. "I kin take him with me, and if I can't git him a home, I kin put him in the house, ye know."

Joe did not speak when this plan was unfolded to him. Were not all places alike now?

The next Monday he took a last look at Sandy's resting-place, and followed, abe sandy's resting-place, and followed, and he tensetr. The wealty miner from Sonora was fascinated with the new life, and did not take time to search for a home for the by he had brought with him, so tall ended by Joe's being placed in a building with long windows overlooking the Mission Dolores, and generally designated as the poorhouse. Joe's lot was not so easy here as it might have been. He was on his feet early and late, and it seemed to him that the work would never be done. Poor little Joe!

Four years passed in this seemingly endless round, and although the child grew better, he looked pinched and white, and his eyes were larger and bluer than ever. Then a day came when the matron sent for him to eome down to the parlor. Wonderingly he went in to find a stout, pleasant, and he sand house the matron was saying." It hink he will please you, as he is willing, and capable, and never complains. Here he is now."

"Ah," said the visitor, holding out her small, gloved -band, "ome here. Passing strangers spaked the hand." Passing strangers spaked the hand. Passing strangers spaked the here is now."

"Ah," said the visitor, ho

"Ah," said the visitor, holding out her small, gloved band, "come here, my boy!"

What a low, gentle voice! Joe put his hand in hers, and said very simply: "You speak as my mother did. She has been dead a long time, but I shall something in the words touched the lady's heart, and she said: "I want you to be my boy. Will you come?" Oh, the glad look in the expressive eyes, and the changed color of the winning fees.

he had indeed turned a page in his life's history.

The supper bell rang and Joe went to the dining-room, where everything passed off pleasantly until dinner was nearly over, when Mrs. Harris poured out a glass of sparkling wine and held it toward Joe. Trembling for fear of a reprimand, he said: "No, I cannot drink it."

"O, Mrs. Harris, don't make me drink it. It killed my papa, and caused my mamma to die. Please don't make me!"

"Why, certainly not, dear, if you don't wish to. But don't call me Mrs. Harris; I'm mother to you, remem-

Oh, the days and evenings, and nights, too, that followed—nights when Joe slept too soundly to dream. Whenever he offered to do any work, his new mother would say: "Why, I should think you had worked enough in your life to want rest now. I don't want you to do anything but read and grow."

Accustomed from early childhood to Accustomed from early childhood to work, Joe could not but tire of pleasure, and besides, he felt that he was work, Joe could not but tire of pleasine, and besides, he felt that he was in some way imposing upon Mrs. Harris, if she would not allow him to do anything. As time passed on he tried to tell her how he felt about it, and at last he found courage to tell her, and then she told him how much she loved him, and said she had sufficient means to keep him.

"Yes," said Joe, "but you have already done a great deal for me, and now I wish to work and make something for myself."

"You can study here," said Mrs. Harris, "and work about the garden, and when I die my money will be divided between you and my niece, and then you will have enough to start in business for yourself."

"Nellie ought to have it all," broke in Joe, "she is your niece, while——"

"You are my son." interrupted Mrs. Harris. But to please him she said she would look about and see what could be done.

would look about and see what could be done.

Some days after they had a visitor whom Mrs. Harris introduced as Dr. Fernall. At dinner she playfully told him how badly Joe wished to leave her.

"Well, I admire the spirit of independence, and am also pleased to see that the boy does not drink wine," the gentleman replied. "I am in need of a boy and am tempted to ask you to let me have him, although my office being in Oakland, he would have to remain there during the week."

Joe looked at the genial, pleasant face of the Doctor, and said in an eager half whisper, "Please let me go, mother, please let me go!"

So arrangements were made and Joe went to Oakland to live with the Doctor, spending his spare time in studying, first Eeglish branches and after ward giving attention to medicine.

So six years went by and Joe had grown to be a fine-looking man and his name was known all over the country, so earnest an advocate was he of total abstinence. One day the Doctor sat reading a paper and suddenly asked excitedly, "Joe, what was your father's name?"

"Frank," said Joe. "Why?"

"Listen," and the Doctor read:

"If the child of Frank Hargrave, who was killed at Hangtown, Cal., in May, 186—, is living and will communicate with me through my lawyer at No. — Montgomery street, San Francisco, he may hear of something to his advantage.

"George Harberave."

"It must be you. Come, let us go at been so kind to him.

Accordingly a beautiful house was erected on a quiet, pleasant street of Oakland, and then Joe asked his favor. That it was granted we may know by black-eyed Nellie going to rule over the new home.

Passing strangers speak of the handsome residence, and noting the fine-looking man who is pointed out as its owner—Joseph Hargrave—never dream that he was once only "Old Yorker's" Joe.

What a delightful ending this story of Mrs. Lawson's has. Happy Joe, at last, because he was true to his mother's teachings. 'There's but one way that's eyes, and the changed color of the winning face.

"May I! O, can I?" he said, looking from one to the other in a bewildered way.

His few belongings were soon ready, and he followed the lady to her carriage and smiled brightly at the little girl, who sat on the front seat and shook her black curls saucily as the lady said: "This is my boy Joe, Nellie."

Then she told Joe to get in, and as they rolled along Joe thought for the first time since he could remember that this was a beautiful world.

They stopped before a low, rambling house, with roses climbing over the porches. Joe sat still with clasped hands until the lady said: "Come, my little man, get out. This is home now. If the park is not very file, and that is a saloon. But I am glad it is not near the park. We have two Loyal Legions the porches. Joe sat still with clasped hands until the lady said: "Come, my little man get out. This is home now. I have not the parade? It is quite late and so I will close now. Good-by. From your friend, BUETIE GEAR.

the porches. Joe sat still with clasped hands until the lady said: "Come, my little man, get out. This is home now. My name is Mrs. Harris, but you are to call me mother. Why, what is it? Are you sorry?"

"No, O, no; I was afraid I'd wake up and it would only be a dream."

Mrs. Harris laughed merrily. "I guess its real," she said pleasantly. "Here, Nellie, show Joe his room, she added as the as they were within the house.

"Yes, I saw the parade and thought it very fine indeed, with the exception of the great carts loaded with beer-kegs, and the men drinking beer. I am glad, my boy, that you do not like the saloon. You will never find men there who leave ther impress upon the times in which they live. No great and good man, in all the world's history, was ever a saloon lounger. Do not forget that, beys. Next week I shall have a grand treat for you in a fine sketch which Mr. Lummis has sent me for our column all the way from New Mexico.

FRESH LITERATURE.

Table Talk for July is pleasant and refreshing in the bright suggestions which it gives us in regard to wise methods of keeping house. It also has an interesting article on "Capri-cious Washington," which closes with a pleasant reference to "Baby McKee, the nation's king." In the culinary department Mrs. S. T. Rorer furnishe her usual monthly menus for July one for each day of the month, which are most acceptable to the good house-keeper. Mrs. Gravson tells the story of "Mrs.Ruskin's Hot Weather House-keeping," which shows how she tried to keep cool and make the house comfortable in summer. This department is filled with valuable articles, as is that also of "The Household." The literary and misellaneous departments are not lacking in interest. (Table Talk Publishing Company Philadelphia.)

Book Chat is always welcome, coming, as it does, with intelligent literary talks, choice reviews of recent books, and its contributions upon various subjects. No literary worker can afford to do without it. (Brentano's, Publishers, Union Square, New York.) one for each day of the month, which

A BRILLIANT GARDEN PARTY ON PICO STREET.

Grand View Presbyterian Church Social-Surprise at the Argyld-Notes of People Who Are "in the Swim" - Coronado, Pasadena, et al.

Last Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ponet gave a lawn party, at their residence, on the corner of Alvarado and Pico streets, for the benefit of the needy poor of the Catholic Church, The spacious grounds were illuminated with Japanese and Chinese lanterns of brilliant hues, and presented a very attractive appearance. The programme was varied, and was replete with interest. Beneath the gay Chinese lanterns, suspended from the orange and fig trees, were inviting lunch tables covered with choice viands, sweetmeats, etc., with charming wo men prettily dressed, hovering around the tables, eager and ready to welcome

There was a splendid display of fireworks, and the guests watched the flaming corruscations of the evanescent rockets, roman candles, etc., with cent rockets, roman cannot be pleased surprise.

The orchestra was led by Prof. Gardner, and during the evening several choice selections were rendered in artistic manner. There was a coma truly artistic manner. There was a violin solo by Mr. Gardner, accompanied by Miss Gardner. Mrs. Schallert sang charmingly. Mrs. Dr. Kannon, a soprano, sang in an exquisite manner. Mrs. McCoy sang "Waiting" with a wealth of feeling and a spirit of meloely that aroused genuine admiration. Her voice is rich and true in tune and power. Miss Gertie Reeves sang excellently. She is certainly a valuable acquision to the vocal talent of this city.

The ladies were accompanied by Prof. J. H. Brenner, in his usual artistic style.

Henry Dockweiler gave a recitation, that was listened to with attention. He is interesting and magnetic in his style of delivery, and deserves a compliment for his fine elecutionary pow-Fathers Meyer, Bishop of Joppa, Rev. Fathers Meyer, Adams, Hartnett, Grogan, Haeve, Williams, Baurch, Peter, Janiers and others. Miss E. Ganahl expressed a very charming courtesy toward the guests, and assisted Mrs. Ponet in a graceful way in her duties as hostess. After the clergy had departed in their carriages for home, the remaining guests repaired to the platform which had been built out among the orange trees where the myriads of Japanese lanterns of all sizes and hues Japanese lanterns of all sizes and hues Japanese lanterus of all sizes and nues were bobbing about overhead. The music started and the dance commenced. Cars and hacks were in attendance to convey the guests to their homes at 1 o'clock. It was a very pleasant affair, and was enjoyed by all who were present. The Dving Wild Rose a wanderer down the mountain goes from peaks of deep eternal snows, where the tree buds and flower blows, He sings—and sings so sweetly. No words were in the song he sung, for abl no words of mortal tongue could e'er express the thought that sprung To him who loved us flowers.

But well we flowers knew the song He carol'd as he strolled along The path that leads the flowers among, Down from the snow-capped mountain He pass'd beneath the trailing vine, Her wanton tendrils round him twine; He stoops to kiss the columbine That hangs her head so shyly.

He pass'd the brook and, looking round as if the place he sought had found; He paused and, steoping to the ground, He ohose me o'er all others. I. happy in a lover's pride. Nestled against my lover's s'de. I with him o'er the world so wide, Will go and leave him never.

But down the mountain glen we passed, And, crossing o'er the sandy waste, His band against my leaves he pressed, One little thorn pierced him. And there, amid that lonely land, He careless threw me on the sand, (But ere I fell I kissed his hand, For ah! I loved him dearly),

"Ah love! Why cast me thus away? You chose me in the light of day.

When, all contented with my lot,
In that secluded lonely spot,
Ah God I Ah God I why died I not Ere fate brought us together?
But, ere I die, O hear this truth,
You'll pluck one day, O heedles youth,
A flower whose thorn, like viper's tooth,
Your very heart will poison!

You'll wander east, you'll wander wand vain forever be your quest,
You'll seek, but never find a rest,
Stung by no rose's thorn. Indio. Ju ne 10, 1889.
